An Entertaining Magistrate.

Clayton, Michigan, possesses a justice of the peace who is becoming renowned as a marrying justice, and his services are often sought from afar. He is a thorough believer in newspaper advertising, and his advertisement in the Newspaper reads: If a man's in love, That's his business. If a girl's in love, That's her business. If they contemplate matrimony, That's my business.

The suit of C. B. Eaton against the Lexington & Eastern Railroad, in which plaintiff asks for $1,000 damages and to force the road to erect a depot near his residence, or failing to get the depot he asks for $10,000 damages, was tried before Major I. N. Cardwell, Special Judge, who has decided in favor of the road.—Winchester Sun.

BREVITIES OF FUN.

Mistress—"What a charming head of hair you have, Jane! I quite envy you." Jane—"Well, mum, you can borrow it whenever you like."—Colored Comic.

Tourist—"You say he is one of your most prominent citizens. What has he ever done?" "Specie Bill"—"Fifteen years. Not another cent in town has done more'n ten."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Miss Flight—"Your wife tells me that you deceived her into marrying you. She says that you told her that you were very well off!" Mr. Bunkum—"So I was, but I didn't know it!"—Pick-Me-Up.

Little Edgar—"Papa, who was the greatest hero of the war?" Papa—"Capt. Biblehead, I guess. His magazine story is three pages longer than any of the rest of them has written."—Chicago Daily News.

Parishioner—"Yes, mum, I do admire the vicar's sermons—that I do." Vicar's Wife—"I'm so glad! And you really understand them?" Parishioner—"Me, mum? Oh, no! I wouldn't presume to understand them!"—Punch.

Maud—"Mr. Slowboy was on the point of proposing to me all last evening. But he seemed so nervous—couldn't keep still a minute. I wonder what was the matter?" Clara—"I can guess. I found the remains of my fancy work on the chair he sat in."—Funny Cuts.

At dinner the friends conversed, much as others do. "It is improper," observed the Armless Wonder, "to sit with one's elbows on the table." "Sour grapes!" cried the Human Salamander, and everybody laughed excepting the Lightning Calculator, who was slow to comprehend things.—Detroit Journal.

CLIENT OBEYED ORDERS.

Amusing Story Told of a Now Prominent Frenchman.

M. Georges Clemenceau, who has been so prominently before the public in the Dreyfus affair as editor of the Aurore, told us a good story in the chamber of deputies the other day. Years ago, when he was the mayor of Martre, and at the same time a deputy, he opened a dispensary in the quarter, where advice was given free, for Clemenceau is a specialist in skin diseases. One day he noticed that he had just one hour in which to get his luncheon and go down to the chamber, where he had to interpellate the government. He called his assistant and said: "How many more patients are there waiting?" "Six," replied the man.

One after the other had his case diagnosed, and Clemenceau, after another glance at his watch, said: "Tell the other two to undress at once, as I have only two more minutes to wait." One entered, and Clemenceau wrote out a prescription in the twinkling of an eye.

The last man came in as naked as the day when he was born. Clemenceau eyed him for a minute and then said: "You are suffering from no skin disease. What have you come here to worry me for?"

The man looked at him aghast for a minute, and replied: "Skin disease? I never said I had a skin disease. Your man came in and told me to undress, M. le Depute, and I did so. All I wanted to ask you was to use your influence to get my sister a place in the post office in Algeria."

Clemenceau smiled, took his name, and did use his influence.—To-day.

Eczema! The Only Cure.

Eczema is more than a skin disease, and no skin remedies can cure it. The doctors are unable to effect a cure, and their mineral mixtures are damaging to the most powerful constitution. The whole trouble is in the blood, and Swift's Specific is the only remedy which can reach such deep-seated blood diseases.

Eczema broke out on my daughter, and continued to spread until her head was entirely covered. She was treated by several good doctors, but grew worse, and the dreadful disease spread to her face. She was taken to two celebrated bath springs, but received no benefit. Many patent medicines were taken, but without result, until we decided to try S. S. S., and by the time the first bottle was finished, her head began to heal. A dozen bottles cured her completely and left her skin perfectly smooth. She is now sixteen years old, and has a magnificent growth of hair. Not a sign of the dreadful disease has ever returned.

Don't expect local applications of soaps and salves to cure Eczema. They reach only the surface, while the disease comes from within. Swift's Specific is the only cure and will reach the most obstinate case. It is far ahead of all similar remedies, because it cures cases which are beyond their reach. S. S. S. is purely vegetable, and is the only blood remedy guaranteed to contain no poison, mercury or other mineral.

THE TURKISH MASSACRES.

Some of the Awful Scenes Recently Enacted in Armenia.

You would see only a small knot of people, say 20, perhaps a flourish of wooden clubs in the air, says Chambers Roberts in the Atlantic. Then the mob would move on, leaving the body of a dead Armenian behind. This was massacre. Not a sound signified the horrible business. The shops were closed as if for a holiday; people, men and women, evidently all Turks, were quietly moving about the streets. The stillness of it seemed to be the most appalling part. One soon grew hardened to the sight of dead men. One came to expect that venerable Ulemas, the ascetic young Sofias, on their way from mosque to mosque, would kick the mangled bodies which blocked their paths, and curse them for dogs of Armenian traitors. The pools of blood in the streets, in some places actually dripping and trickling downhill, came in time, after you had stepped over and around a hundred of them, to remind you of some early visit to a slaughter house. Animal blood all seems the same; it was hard to realize that this had run in human veins.

Thursday night the killing continued; so, also, all night long, the rattle of the death carts through the streets carrying the dead to the burying trenches. Not until Friday night did the continual pressure of the assassins force the government to issue orders to the soldiers to fire on any mobs seen. Then the massacre came promptly to an end. A visit made on Saturday morning to the Armenian cemetery at Chichli gave the best idea of the awful extent of the deadly work. Here the American and Belgian ministers estimated that they saw from 1,500 to 2,000 bodies, laid out in long lines, awaiting the completion of the trenches. Many of them had been lying in the hot sun since Wednesday, and were so swollen that their arms and legs were thrust up stark and stiff into the air.

Armenians were killed because the Turks were convinced that they were conspiring against the holy government; and they were permitted to be killed because that same holy government did not dare to add to its well-established unpopularity by interfering with its infuriated subjects. Undoubtedly the priesthood had much to do with inciting the murderers.

PADEREWSKI AS A STUDENT.

Had Won Fame as a Virtuoso, Then Begon All Over Again.

"When Paderewski came to Leschetizky, in Vienna, some ten years ago, it was as a concert performer who had already achieved success in Russia and mastered an extensive repertoire," wrote Cleveland Moffett, in the Ladies' Home Journal. Leschetizky heard him play for awhile and then said: "You have some very bad faults, but you have talent. You have played too many things, and nothing well enough. Your wrist is hard and stiff. If you come to me you must forget for six months that you have a repertoire; you must play nothing but exercises for technique, six hours a day of exercises, and nothing else."

"Paderewski thought the matter over and decided that he had the strength of will for this severe test, and put himself entirely in Leschetizky's hands. All day long for six months this finished concert performer worked away at the mechanics of piano playing, at exercises specially devised for him by Leschetizky, and some devised by himself with reference to peculiarities of his own hands. Every evening he took a lesson at the professor's house, this being a mark of special favor, for with ordinary pupils all lessons end at five in the afternoon, and one lesson in two weeks is the best that even the most proficient may attain. One hour, two hours, three hours, these nightly lessons lasted, for Leschetizky gives no heed to time once his serious interest is aroused. These two men were together constantly; they took long walks; they played hard-fought games of billiards, both being adepts at the game; they talked incessantly, for Leschetizky has a fluent tongue, and what the older man knew of the sounding art he gave freely to the younger man, and that the disciple has given to the world."

Cost of Armed Peace.

The cost of keeping the whole of Europe on a military and naval footing works out at considerable over $12,000,000. The navy and army of Russia costs at present over $51,500,000 annually; Great Britain, without colonies or dependencies, $38,500,000,000; France, $37,000,000,000, and Germany, $26,500,000,000. The revenue of Russia is $179,000,000; France, $137,500,000; Great Britain, $103,000,000, and Germany, $64,250,000, with populations of 124,000,000, 39,500,000, 38,000,000 and 39,500,000 respectively.

All meetings of the midwinter demonstration contest in which the various colleges take part will be held in Lexington.
